DEATH CALLS PIONEER IN LUMBERING

Matthew Blair, Sr., Is Summoned On Thursday At His Late Residence

Matthew Blair, Sr., 91, a resident of El Dorado County more than sixty-two years and a well-known pioneer lumberman, died Thursday afternoon at his residence on Clay Street.

Mr. Blair had suffered a stroke three days before his passing. Until the time he was stricken he had been up and about, maintaining an active interest in affairs and keenly alert to world-wide happenings.

According to arrangements announced by Memory Chapel, private funeral services will be held from the chapel on Saturday morning. The Rev. Harold Morehouse will have charge. Interment will be at Union cemetery.

Resident in El Dorado County since 1878 and during his active life engaged in the lumbering business, Mr. Blair had won a host of friends who shared with his family their happiness at his enjoyment of a full and active life despite his advanced age, and who share now again with them in their bereavement at the passing of a devoted husband and father, a loyal friend and kindly neighbor and an esteemed citizen of the community.

Mr. Blair was born October 16th, 1848, at Barhead, Scotland, and was thirteen months old when his parents brought him to America. He came to El Dorado County sixty-two years ago on April 19th, last, and following an active and successful pursuit of the lumbering industry, retired about twenty years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline Blair, and by seven children, Matthew Blair, Mrs. John Harris, Walter Blair, Arthur Blair, Albert Blair, Mrs. L. D. Smith, of Van Nuys, and Earl Blair, of Lima Peru, who is at present accompanying a government expedition to Central and South America for the Department of Agriculture.

Emma Hare Gordon Publishes Song

"The Hills Of El Dorado" Composed By Well Loved Former County Resident

The many friends of Mrs. Emma Hare Gordon, and El Dorado County residents generally, will be interested and pleased to know that she is the author and composer of a recently published song, "The Hills of El Dorado."

Mrs. Gordon moved several years ago to Oakland, and it was there that her song was published and copyrighted by the National Music Publishers & Distributors.

Unfortunately we cannot whistle in print, nor does the office have the facilities for printing music. However, we can report that "The Hills of El Dorado" is a melodious tune in the key of C and intended to be sung with an enthusiastic spirit in the tempo of a rallying song.

The lyric includes two verses and the chorus and gives expression to the author's thoughts that "In the hills of El Dorado, Decked in blossoms bright and gay, Where the sun is ever shining and the birds sing all the day, Lives a happy little mother, Who is waiting there for me, In the cottage by the hill-side, Underneath the old oak tree."

"Where the purple shadows gather, In the shadowy ravine, And the snowy capped Sierras, Catch the snow-dawn's first gleam, There's a lonely trail that wanders, To the place that I love best, In the hills of El Dorado, In that happy Golden West," is the second verse.

The chorus: "Charming peaceful land of El Dorado, How I love your sloping hills; Your valleys green and your mountain stream my lonely heart with rapture thrills; Take me home to dearest El Dorado, Where the soft pine breezes blow, Where men search for gold as in the days of old, In the sunny hills of El Dorado."

Mrs. Loreen Wild and son Freddie are here from Los Angeles visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lela Vaught.

Newspaper Week Oct. 1 To 8th

Olson Lauds Free Press In Proclamation For Annual Observance

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The importance of a "free, courageous and constructive press" as a bulwark of national defense was cited today by Governor Culbert L. Olson in proclaiming Newspaper Week in California during the week of October 1 to 8.

The governor's proclamation was as follows:

"Never before in history has Democracy faced such a menacing crisis as that confronting it today. Never before has civilization witnessed such a devastating warfare which now threatens the entire world.

"If democracy is to survive; if the American way of living is to be perpetuated we must safeguard our American ideals and principles with all the power at our command. We must be on guard within as well as without against those forces which would destroy all that we hold dear.

"One of our strongest bulwarks of defense is a free, courageous and constructive press, newspapers, to fulfill their obligations to the American people must lead the way in disseminating factual information, untainted by personal opinion. In addition they are charged today more than ever with the grave responsibility of editorially combating for that which builds up and against that which tears down."

Pete Fosatti is at the home of his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Fosatti, at Smith Flat, with one leg in a cast. Pete was treated at the Sanatorium for a leg fracture resulting from a mishap while unloading a truck of lumber, according to reports. His friends will be glad to know that although the leg is broken, the fracture is of a type which is expected to mend rapidly and completely.

Bart Arundel, of the postoffice staff, is reported on the sick list this week.

County's Churches Subject Of Book

The World Is Reminded Of Religious Influence In Pioneer Community

We have had the opportunity this week to give brief inspection to a booklet lately published at the instance of Will O. Upton, giving a review of the "Churches of El Dorado County" and ninety years of their history in our community.

We are glad that Mr. Upton has compiled this book, a copy of which he has presented to us, for it serves as a reminder of what all persons of judgment must know if they would only think of it: That "California was not founded by gamblers, cutthroats, highwaymen and the demimonde."

Too often, when persons undertake to write of olden times, they tell of shooting scrapes, hangings and reckless and exciting adventure. This has been done and done again until the unthinking have come to accept it to be a fact that a day in the pioneer community was not begun without its murder and hanging.

And so we are glad that Mr. Upton has undertaken this work, to add the voice of the "Churches of El Dorado County" to those comparatively few other works which remind those who have read them that almost from the earliest time

Civic Program Taking Form

Grand Lodge Of Masons, Grand Parlor Of N. S. G. W., Share P. O. Opening

The program for the civic exercises marking the establishment of Placerville's new postoffice building, on September 14, is taking definite form, it was announced Thursday by Postmaster Anna Scherrer.

The Grand Lodge of Masons in California, and the Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, will share in the program and the cornerstone will be placed under Masonic auspices while the dedication of the building will be under the auspices of the Native Sons.

The postmaster replied in response to a question that the building has not been formally accepted by the government up to this time, on inspection, it was found that there was some work which had not been completed.

The postmaster was uncertain on Thursday morning whether the work could be completed and the necessary inspection and acceptance obtained in time to permit of putting the building into service on September 15th. However, whether or no, the cornerstone will be placed and the building dedicated on Sunday, September 14, and occupancy of the building will be effected as soon afterward as possible.

DRAFT DEBATE YIELDS FIST FIGHT

Congress Hears Charge Of "Traitor" Flung; Record Is Expunged

By JOHN R. BEAL
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The house today formally expunged from its record the use of the word "traitor" by Rep. Beverly M. Vincent, D., of Kentucky, which resulted in a fist fight on the floor last night between Vincent and Rep. Martin L. Sweeney, D., of Ohio.

Without debate it adopted a resolution by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, R., Mich., striking out Vincent's assertion, made in a speech of explanation for the fight, in which he declared:

"I said I did not want to sit by a traitor to my country."

Hoffman offered his resolution before the house began consideration of amendments to the conscription bill. Sweeney's attack on the measure precipitated the altercation.

There was no record vote of the expunging, Speaker Bankhead declaring it adopted on a murmur of "ayes" from about half of the 50 members present.

Administration leaders still hoped to get a final vote on the bill by tomorrow night despite the bitterness of debate displayed during the last two days.

The Sweeney-Vincent fist fight was the note on which the house ended two days of general debate last night at 10:30 p. m., on the bill that would make men between the ages of 21 and 45 subject to draft for military service.

Before the house adjourned it heard the two participants give their explanations—and in the telling Sweeney apologized and Vincent (Continued on Page Three)

THE OLD HOME TOWN By STANLEY

Love Shy by Nelly Graf

(AUTHOR OF "GIRLS WITHOUT MEN")

Marianne Minear lives on the wrong side of the little town of Centerville. She realizes this poignantly when Monte Thurston, her high-school sweetheart, deserts her for the well-to-do and socially secure Sabra Anderson. Embittered, she becomes convinced that love is cruel, and money everything, and grimly vows that, some day, she will have money. She takes a job as bookkeeper, and, determined to get ahead, studies advertising with Leonard Bailey, a young man deeply interested in her. She likes Leonard, but he is poor, and she cannot forget that money is now more important to her than love. When Mr. Gleason, a real-estate man from New York, gives Leonard a job, Leonard persuades him to hire Marianne, too. In New York, Marianne works hard, advances rapidly, and finally becomes Gleason's private secretary.

CHAPTER XIII
SEVERAL months had passed since Marianne's promotion. They had been busy months, wherein she had progressed so rapidly that, little by little, Gleason had come to depend upon her more as an assistant than a secretary. Her knowledge of all pending deals and every transaction's history was amazing. She must spend a lot of overtime learning all this, Gleason thought. Shrewdly, he had ever done—hiring her.

It was on a Saturday afternoon that Marianne had planned to spend working. That Leonard came rushing into her office.

"Get your hat," he commanded gaily. "We're barely time to catch a train to a little place in Jersey I want to take you to. An hour's ride. Then we walk about a half mile and find a road. A gypsy road that wanders about all dressed up in autumn flowers and leaves."

Marianne frowned. Leonard was always taking her to see places like that. Little homes nestled in pastoral settings. Wooded country where streamlets bubbled joyously. Adventuring, Leonard called it.

But she really didn't have time for such things. She was too impatient to get ahead rapidly. Gleason had recommended books on interior decorating and salesmanship. She needed to study, to glean new ideas for putting over sub-divisions.

Well, she would go today—for the last time. Then, no more precious moments wasted.

AN HOUR later, when she and Leonard got off the train at their destination, she looked about without interest. But when they reached the "gypsy" road, she did exclaim. It wound among trees gorgeous in autumn coloring.

They walked along it until they came to an open space, where Leonard stopped with just one word. "Look." Before them was a vista of lovely rolling hills.

"This," he went on exultantly, "is the spot Doc Lawson and I have picked for a hospital for crippled orphan children. Later when we can raise the money, the home for orphans will be erected on that far hill to the north. If our plans work out, all the rooms in the hospital will be endowed, and every crippled orphan in the State will benefit."

"Len, that's wonderful! And such a lovely place."

"Yes, Woodland Heights is the ideal."

"Woodland Heights?" Marianne interrupted. "Is this Woodland Heights?"

"Yes, and it's just the place."

"Why, this is the place Gleason has his eye on to make into an exclusive suburb. I've had a lot of letters about it."

"Yes, but Doc and I hope to buy it up before Gleason gets it restricted. We have over half of the funds raised."

"But you mustn't do that!" Marianne said. "If Gleason's plans go through, we'll make piles of money. It's too valuable land for a hospital. Can't you find some other spot that will do just as well?"

"No, we can't," Leonard answered impatiently. "This is the place we want. When we get things going, Marianne, I'm going to quit Gleason and act as Doc's business manager. I've plans for a little home on one of those knolls—the one you like best. Because—" he hesitated bashfully, then went on. "I hope you'll be in that home to wave a welcome to me. There'll be a flower garden in the back with a picnic nook. Children playing in the sun. Oh, Marianne, don't you understand?"

For a moment, something shining and glorious blinded Marianne.

"Leonard..." She made a groping motion toward him, but before his swift, eager steps could take him to her side, she stepped back.

"What pretty word pictures you paint!" She laughed nervously. "But you mustn't. Don't talk that way again—ever. We may as well understand each other."

There was an awkward silence. Then Marianne spoke again, hastily, as though to cover embarrassment.

"Len, I think your plan for a hospital is wonderful. I'll even endow one of the rooms. But this—"

Her hand swept the landscape. "It's an opportunity we can't pass up. It wouldn't be fair to Gleason. While you—why, almost any site will do for that hospital."

"YOU think so?" Leonard answered coldly. "I wish I hadn't told you." His voice trembled. "Marianne, I'm disappointed in you."

"Disappointed! I like that, after the way I've worked to make good on the job you got for me!"

"Job—it's all you think about! I'm sorry you ever came here at all. You're selfish and heartless."

"Thanks," Marianne cut in bitterly. "If you call being sensible about such land as Woodland Heights heartless, you're crazy. Len, I tell you what let's do—let's go to Gleason and offer to put this deal over ourselves, on commission."

"How could we put such a deal over? And even if we could, I wouldn't! I tell you, I've picked this place for orphans!"

"We'll get some other place for your orphans," Marianne retorted. "Personally, I'm going to make money on Woodland Heights if I can."

"If you try to beat me to this place of land," Leonard answered curtly. "I'll never forgive you. They didn't speak for a long time after that."

Finally, Marianne asked, as they went back along the gypsy road. "Isn't that the home of the Rayson Blands?" She pointed to a mansion on the edge of the Heights.

ACQUISITION OF DESTROYER FLEET WILL BE OF MATERIAL AID TO BRITAIN IN MAINTAINING FULL CONTROL OF ENGLISH CHANNEL

By J. W. T. MASON
United Press War Expert

Acquisition by Great Britain of 50 American destroyers increases British command of the Channel so decisively that it should give preponderant weight to the opinion of those German generals who have been advising Hitler against an invasion. The destroyers, too, will strengthen security of the British convoy system. Augmented British sea power in the Mediterranean will further jeopardize reinforcements of men and supplies for an Italian campaign in north Africa.

Hitler and Mussolini now will have to revise their former strategy based on depletion of the British destroyer fleet. Once the American ships get into action, Hitler can hold no serious hope of even moderate success for his starvation blockade. Losses of British merchant shipping henceforth should be reduced considerably while passing through the submarine zone.

A United Press correspondent who had been eight days with a convoy of 30 merchantmen reported that the escort consisted of only one destroyer and a smaller auxiliary craft. The convoyed ships were stretched out for 15 miles, which would require three destroyers to guarantee security. These now will be available and the intensity of the strain on a single destroyer crew will be diminished, thus adding to efficient guardianship.

An attempted invasion of the British Isles must be planned on the assumption of no serious attack upon transports while crossing the Channel. Large warships operating in the narrow channel waters, run serious danger because of lack of adequate maneuver space. Speedy destroyers, able to twist and turn at will, are the natural challengers of an invading fleet. A flotilla of American ships reinforce-

LONDON HINTS WAR DUE ON NEW FRONT

Churchill Expects Action In Middle East; Air Battle Delays Commons Session

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Great Britain definitely accepted Adolf Hitler's challenge to mass aerial war today when Prime Minister Winston Churchill promised that increasing British power would crumble the Nazi empire.

Addressing a session of the House of Commons that was interrupted by aerial battles over the London area, Churchill made two potentially important statements to parliament reflecting the British view of grave developments in the south-eastern and Mediterranean areas:

1. Churchill predicted heavy fighting in the middle east where reinforcements have been rushed and foreign secretary Viscount Halifax said that Britain would give full aid to Greece if the Greeks resist a threatened Italian attack.

2. Churchill declared that Britain would refuse to recognize territorial changes dictated by force in the Balkans, where cession of territory to Hungary and Russia by Rumania has resulted in establishment of a dictatorial regime under Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu.

The prime minister's speech was against a background of continued and intensifying air warfare that took British bombers on long-distance attacks in the Berlin area and against north Italy, and kept the British defense forces busy fighting off German attacks during the entire day.

The Nazis claimed they had shot down 20 British planes and the British reported 10 German craft destroyed in raids that appeared to be centered again on R. A. F. bases not far from London.

Headless of the fuhrer's threats to "raze" British cities Royal Air Force planes again swarmed over Germany, causing a two-hour air raid alarm in Berlin, blasting an army storehouse and dropping a bomb in the famous Tiergarten in the capital city. In an attack on a north German city, it was admitted, 18 persons were killed.

As the British and German air forces traded blow for blow the Balkans felt repercussions of the Rumanian crisis. First Hungarian troops marched into Transylvania and Gen. Ion Antonescu virtually succeeded King Carol as Rumanian dictator.

More than 50 British towns and cities heard the crash of German bombs and the roar of German planes in the hours before daylight. In one London district region 100 bombs fell. In another section of the metropolitan defense area 50 or more bombs were dropped in 10 minutes.

So many German planes were over Britain that defense leaders sent into action new secret anti-aircraft batteries. The guns threw up a canopy of bursting and flaming shells and were reported to have brought down six of the raiders, bringing the 24-hour tabulation to 60 German planes down against the loss of 11 British craft with five pilots safe.

In the Mediterranean area there were signs of impending far-reaching developments involving the French colonial possessions. Tangier reported that great developments were expected soon at Gibraltar as reports indicated French Morocco might be on the verge of open insurrection against the Vichy regime.

SOROPTOMISTS RESUME MEETINGS FOLLOWING SUMMER VACATION

According to Mrs. Reta May, president of the Placerville Soroptomist Club, that organization has resumed active meetings and work, following a two months summer vacation. First meeting of the fall and winter season was held at the Raffles Hotel Wednesday noon, with a good representation in attendance.

Plans for the coming year were discussed, which among other important activities calls for the revival of the Milk Fund collections for under-nourished children of the Placerville Grammar School, ways and means of assisting the national organization with plans for the care and adoption of war refugee children. Plans were also tentatively laid for a birthday night, for the latter part of this month.

Jess Lovejoy of Sacramento is to be the guest speaker for next Wednesday luncheon meeting, it was announced.

Mrs. May stated that Mrs. Ethel Raffetto is the chairman in charge of the collection for the milk fund, and all Placerville merchants are being asked to place the milk bottles in a prominent location on store counters in order that the public may be encouraged to give some of their small change toward this most worthy cause.

TANK GAS CONCERN HAS OPENED AGENCY IN PLACERVILLE

The Placer Gas Company has opened a branch unit in this county and have established headquarters for the county in Placerville with K. Pierce, local manager, operating from his home address at 111 Canal Street.

Marketers of tank gas, for heating and cooking, the company, according to Mr. Pierce has been active in Placer county for about six years, branching out into Nevada county about two years ago. El Dorado County was added to their territory about six months ago, but the branch was not established here until September 1st, with the arrival of Mr. Pierce.

The local manager has a wife and child, who have moved here from Auburn to establish their home.

County's Churches Subject Of Book

In our community we have had the influence of the churches and church people.

Mr. Upton's book is based upon data gathered over a period of more than two years from many and varied sources and is "written without prejudice against any religious denomination in a sincere desire to give the true history regarding them all."

In addition to numerous intensely interesting photos of church buildings of the past and present throughout the county, the book contains reviews of the work of many religious groups in the county during the ninety years since 1850 and Mr. Upton says in the preface that "if we have overlooked a single religious denomination that existed, or exists, in the county, it was certainly not for want of hard and careful research work."

V. F. W. AUXILIARY OFFERS NATURALIZATION HELP WITHOUT CHARGE

Mrs. Frances T. Ahlstrom, secretary of the auxiliary to Sierra Nevada Post No. 2680, V. F. W., has written us to report that the members of the auxiliary are continuing their offer of assistance in study to any person preparing for citizenship naturalization examinations.

The assistance is offered without charge, except for the usual filing fee to be paid at the office of the County Clerk by any person seeking naturalization, and is extended by the auxiliary through a committee of members whose homes are scattered throughout the county.

The secretary also reports that at the recent meeting of the auxiliary, tentative plans were made for resuming a series of card parties, and mentions as a high-light of the summer season, a turkey dinner for the post and auxiliary in July, with members in attendance from other nearby communities, including Roseville, Lincoln, Knights Landing and Sacramento. The turkeys were a gift from Comrade and Mrs. Attebury, at Lincoln.

Charles Barboni, of Marin county has leased the 640-acre Mission Land and Cattle Co. dairy ranch in Napa valley.

cent publicly repeated his accusation. Vincent finally withdrew some of his words when Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, R. Mich., moved to "take them down"—a preliminary to expunging them from the record.

Sweeney was the first to speak. He said it was the first time in his congressional service—he took office in 1931—that he had ever had an altercation with a member on the floor.

"Perhaps," he said, "I should tell you what took place and let you be the judge. As I resumed my seat, the gentleman with whom I had the difficulty called me a traitor. He repeated it again and you know what happened."

"I am sorry I brought any confusion to the house, and if you think I am guilty in any way at all, I apologize to you and to the nation."

Members arose and applauded. Vincent asked for recognition.

He said he resented an implication in Sweeney's speech that President Wilson "brought on" the World War.

"As I understood it then and as I understand it now," he said, "the war was fought because we were being attacked by submarines, and women and children murdered on the high seas."

"To me that statement (Sweeney's) was an untruth and the whole statement that the gentleman made here I resent very much."

"When he came down to sit with me I got up and moved, as I shall continue to move as long as I am a member of the Congress of the United States and he is a member. . . I said I did not want to sit with a traitor to my country. Then he attacked me and you know what happened."

"I have no apology to make —" Some member interrupted him with the cry: "Shame on you!"

"— and the speech that the gentleman made was proof to me that he is a traitor to his country," Vincent concluded.

Sweeney's speech which aroused Vincent's resentment included the charge that conscription was the last in a series of four steps toward war.

The first, Sweeney said, was "when congress shook the hand of the King and Queen of England." He referred to the congressional reception for the British monarchs in the capitol rotunda a year ago last June. Sweeney did not attend.

Congress took the second step toward war, he said, when it lifted the arms embargo.

"The third," he added, "was taken yesterday, when the President, without our consent, traded 50 of our destroyers for some leaseholds."

"The last step will be taken when you pass this bill, and then it is 'Boys, Boys,' again."

W. C. Hinton, operator of the Beacon Service Station in Placerville, was called to Stockton Wednesday following word that his father-in-law, Arthur Stewart, had been seriously hurt in an automobile accident, near that city. It was said that Mr. Stewart, a state traffic officer, was struck down by a moving car. Other than that no particulars were available.

SELBY SMELTER SHUT-DOWN ADDS TO PROBLEMS OF MINING INDUSTRY

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Shut-down of the American Smelting & Refining Co. plant at Selby, Contra Costa County, has imposed a serious handicap on several small mines in California which had been shipping their gold ore concentrates to Selby for processing.

The Selby plant has been closed since July 1 by a strike of more than 500 members of the CIO international mine, mill and smelter workers union. They demanded a raise in pay from $5 to $6 a day, which the company refused to grant.

Walter Bradley, state director of mineralogy, disclosed that Newmont Company, holding company for the big Empire Star Mines at Grass Valley, has applied for and received a custom mill license authorizing it to reduce gold ore from other mines in its own cyanide reduction plant.

Bradley said he understood neighboring mines in the Grass Valley area, desperate because the Selby smelting plant is no longer available to them, had requested Empire Star to obtain permission to treat their ores with cyanide—the alternative to smelting in the reduction of gold ore.

The Idaho-Maryland Mine, the other major gold mining concern of the Grass Valley area, already holds a custom mill license, Bradley stated.

It was reported that some small mines have been forced to close down because the installation of a cyanide process was too expensive. Another report was that Utah smelters have been unable to accept California ore because it had been declared "hot" by union sympathizers there.

Reno reports issuance of a license to wed this week to Doris H. Comstock, 24, and Virginia Keller, 23, both of Placerville.

Hundred Thousand Enroll In N.A.C. Aviation Course

PLENTY of CHARTS and DIAGRAMS
TO BE MEMORIZED

Council's Experts Preparing Young Men for Air Service and Civil Flying Training; Also Thousands of Aviation Ground Jobs

MORE than 100,000 young men and a number of women have applied for the National Aeronautics Council's aviation ground school course since it was announced one month ago. They are looking forward to flying jobs in both military and civil aviation, the majority showing a preference for the latter field which is a phe-nomenally fast-growing one. As far as our national defense plan calling for 50,000 airplanes is concerned, some 150,000 young men will have to be trained to pilot these, and hundreds of thousands more taught how to build and maintain the ships, their hangars and their flying field equipment, for every pilot in the air means twenty or more specialized men on the ground. The Government's pilot training program calls for about 700 practical flying instruction centers being established in the near future, with a quota in every state in the Union and in our possessions.
Both college graduates and non-college men will be accepted for flying training by the Government, provided they can meet the rigid requirements, physical and mental.
For the flying status they must be between the ages of eighteen and twenty-six.
Before being accepted for the Government school by the Civil Aeronautics Board, which has jurisdiction in this matter, the candidate must pass a written test as well as a physical examination in order to receive the student pilot certificate entitling him to training at the Government's expense. Many who apply will be destined to disappointment because they cannot meet the requirements. Anticipating this, the National Aeronautics Council, Inc., early in September

Mrs. Mary Jane Elliott has resumed her work at the Institute of Forest Genetics following a week's vacation in the Bay District.

will inaugurate a course in ground school preparatory work, to be issued in fifty-four weekly instalments by mail for home study. This will prove a great boon to the air-minded young man who is material for a flying career, for (if he is reasonably intelligent) the course will enable him to obtain a student-pilot certificate. Furthermore the N.A.C. course may be taken without the necessity of the student relinquishing his present job while studying the important funda-mentals.
A number of active and former Army and Navy Air Service men and civil aviation authorities composing the faculty of the Council have cooperated in producing this very unusual course, consisting of more than 1,200 lectures and titled Aeronautics. These lectures by experts in their respective lines will be illustrated with more than 1,500 photographs, charts, diagrams and aerial maps. The cost to the individual is nominal—only twenty-five cents a week, and the student may drop out at any time if he finds he is not adapted to this sort of work.
Of the 100,000 men and women already enrolled, many do not aspire to become military or air transport pilots, but seek one of the numerous positions which soon will be open in aircraft manufacturing and transport industries, or in maintenance crew work. Others look forward to flying their own planes just for sport. Some of the young men wish to get into aeronautical engineering, design and production, aerial photography, radio operation, and some forty other jobs about the flying field. Among the women applying are trained nurses, high school and college graduates, who hope to become Coordinating the work of these and numerous other experts as general its astounding growth. Among those who will contribute the bene-aviation executives and experts.

Particulars may be obtained from
